

World Communiversity

Where the world is our campus, and our communities are the classrooms.

Foundation

Education is a keystone for enhancing, growing and applying our larger potentials and now is the time to develop more locally engaged and globally coordinated citizens. New forms of education can empower us to better engage diverse learners and educators motivated to address locally relevant challenges necessary for navigating risks threatening our global civilization. The World Communiversity represents unique opportunities for educating, innovating and collaborating across our many cultural, economic and ideological boundaries. Together we can and must create more effective learning ecosystems that can secure a better shared future.

Comprehensive Response to Institutional Challenges

Educational systems prevalent today were designed to serve the industrial age by circulating uniform concepts, creating conformity in people, and setting forth predictive life and work pathways. To date, society has excelled in its ability to produce specialized yet exchangeable agents for advancing predictive work streams. Unfortunately, many of the current educational models are not effectively designed, nor can evolve quickly enough, to foster the innovation and complex learning necessary to thrive in today's quickly changing, increasingly interconnected and complex world.

World Communiversity overcomes these institutional limitations by creating educational hubs distributed around the world and anchored to high-value initiatives formed by community leadership. Core principles of universal global learning propel community based teaching and learning models while encouraging diverse communities to collaboratively engage in mutual problem solving. Our model enables each locality to implement globally sourced solutions in order to address local challenges while also providing much needed visibility and opportunities to share local knowledge and leadership across networks. Regional hubs operate as micro-campuses, with the resources to organize and deliver curricula organized around innovation in social entrepreneurship, inclusive sustainability, and leadership development. Lastly, World Communiversity will provide unprecedented and unrestricted access to higher education with tuition free opportunities for student designed majors, community development through student/leader projects, and responsive educational curricula with direct relevance and timely application.

The World Communiversality will utilize our Global Open Access platform to network 30 hubs together to function as one purpose driven institution. Each hub participates in our Teaching and Learning, Community Engagement and Innovation & Entrepreneurship efforts. Universal Global Learning informs all institutional efforts.

Phased Implementation and Support

World Communiversality, a Colorado non-profit organization, will achieve scale in 3 phases over the next five years, culminating in 20 to 30 operational sites serving students worldwide. We are seeking early stage strategic and financial partners to support the successful completion of Phase 1 (the first 18 months). This will enable World Communiversality to conclude its initial curriculum pilots, stress test cloud architecture, identify and recruit key staff, and open its pilot educational hub site.

We hope that you will join us in developing a new solution to the substantial challenges facing our world community by advancing our educational structures. World Communiversality is poised to bring a truly global and equitable approach to higher education, and we thank you for your interest and support.
